Dear Ms. Somtow:

Thank you for your correspondence of May 30. We are sorry for the damage that occurred to your shipment.

However, the damage being inflicted while it was in transit, we believe it is more effective to inquire the solution to the damage from the shipping company for now.

We look forward to receiving your order in the future. You could choose another shipment company then. Besides, if the damage occurs to your shipment, please inform us in three days you receive the commodities, then we can replace the shipment timely.

You have been a valued customer of ours for a long time, we look forward to continuing our mutually beneficial relationship. If we can do anything else to minimize your inconvenience in regard to this matter, please don't hesitate to contact us.

Yours faithfully,

Malika Karmarkar
